1. Since early 1951 the Soviet teaching system has replaced the [] system in Manchurian high schools. The primary and middle schools are still organized on the [] pattern. 50X
2. The Soviet teaching system has the following characteristics:
 - a. Each lesson lasts 45 minutes.
 - b. The first 20 minutes of each period are spent in reviewing the previous lesson and the remaining time in learning new material.
 - c. Marks are given out of a possible five, and more marks are scored in the review than in the first study of a lesson.
 - d. Final examinations are both written and oral and consist of a few questions selected from a list of 50 to 100 issued several days in advance. Written exams count 80 percent and oral exams 20 percent.
3. Another feature of the Soviet high school, the assistant instructor, is being introduced. These assistants are graduates who live among the pupils and report on their politics and conduct. 50X
4. Since 1 January 1951, [] has not been taught at any schools or universities in Manchuria. Russian has become a compulsory subject.
